Dear Senator Reed,

In the last few months we've seen the White House extend Constitutional rights to non-US citizens - bringing Guantanamo detainees to the US for trial - and issue an executive order that could be used to strip US citizens of those very same rights:

Last Thursday, December 17, 2009, The White House released an Executive Order "Amending Executive Order 12425." It grants INTERPOL (International Criminal Police Organization) a new level of full diplomatic immunity afforded to foreign embassies and select other "International Organizations" as set forth in the United States International Organizations Immunities Act of 1945.

By removing language from President Reagan's 1983 Executive Order 12425, this international law enforcement body now operates - now operates - on American soil beyond the reach of our own top law enforcement arm, the FBI, and is immune from Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) requests.

Surely you sir, a West Point graduate, can see the danger in setting such precedents. They turn the Constitution on its head. If I've misconstrued something, please disabuse me. Otherwise, please take a stand and oppose these measures that undermine our Rights and Sovereignty.

Yours,

We the People
